- Where flooding occurs, there is a chance of delays or cancellations to train and bus services
- There is a small chance that homes and businesses could be flooded, causing damage to some buildings
- There is a small chance of fast flowing or deep floodwater
- There is a slight chance of power cuts and loss of other services to some homes and businesses

Further details

Outbreaks of heavy rain will move northeastwards across northern England and southern Scotland during Wednesday. Across the warning area 20-30 mm of rain is expected to accumulate quite widely. Over higher ground of the Pennines and the Lake District, 40-60 mm is likely during this period with as much as 70-90 mm in a few locations. Strong winds may exacerbate any impacts from the rain. Snow is also likely for a short time across higher ground, although this will quickly turn to rain.

Check if your property could be at risk of flooding. If so, consider preparing a flood plan and an emergency flood kit.

Give yourself the best chance of avoiding delays by checking road conditions if driving, or bus and train timetables, amending your travel plans if necessary.

People cope better with power cuts when they have prepared for them in advance. It's easy to do; consider gathering torches and batteries, a mobile phone power pack and other essential items.

Be prepared for weather warnings to change quickly: when a weather warning is issued, the Met Office recommends staying up to date with the weather forecast in your area.

Reason for update

The parts of Scotland previously included are now covered by a separate warning.
